

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5           A router sub-base and method is disclosed, utilizing a pad of material attached to a router base, to flush cut projections from a wooden surface, smooth areas of a wooden surface, or remove a volume of wood to custom shape a wooden workpiece for special applications, in which a user may manually operate the router to mill wood, using a portion of the existing wooden workpiece surface as a guide to control cutting.